CANADIAN COUNCIL ON INTERNATIONAL LAW
2011 ANNUAL CONFERENCE

President's Welcome:

It is with tremendous satisfaction that I welcome you to the CCIL's 40th annual conference. This organization's first conference took place on October 13-14, 1972, and it has been an autumn tradition in Ottawa ever since. Our conference this year also launches CCIL's 40th anniversary year. We have high hopes for the coming months – new awards recognizing excellence in international law in Canada; a new on-line publication to showcase interesting issues in international law; and a new scholarship, the CCIL Veterans Scholarship.

All these initiatives are in their development stage, and we continue to invite participation in them. Not least, we welcome your financial support for the CCIL Veterans Scholarship. Indeed, in a rather idiosyncratic departure from conventional approaches to these things, I hope to entice support for this venture through a series of lengthy endurance sporting events in 2012!

You can find out more about all of these developments on the revamped CCIL website at www.ccil-ccdi.ca.

In the meantime, we look forward to a fabulous three days of conference-going. Our theme this year is "culture and innovation in international law" and under that umbrella you will find a rich offering of issues to appeal to all tastes. Our conference is now vast in scope – usually four parallel panels – reflecting the breadth and depth of interest in international law in Canada. The scope of this conference also reflects the talents and unstinting efforts of our indomitable conference co-chairs: Robert Brookfield (DFAIT) and Fannie Lafontaine (Laval). Those who have organized conferences before know that it is a challenging and often nerve-racking undertaking. Our co-chairs have been steadfast and the result is the quality event that you are now attending.

We are also the happy and fortuitous recipient of the many generous sponsorships listed in this program. These sponsors are all partners whose contributions makes the difference between this being a viable event and it being a much more muted and modest affair. We thank them very sincerely for their contributions and look forward to a terrific, on-going relationship.

And a final thanks goes to all of you: the audience for whom we do all of this. The CCIL is an act of faith: an organization whose purpose is to create a community of international lawyers from all corners of the profession, assembled to discuss and debate the law of nations. What we all share in common is a faith in the role of international law to act, in Koskenniemi's words, as the "gentle civilizer of nations." We know that your scarce conference budgets could have been spent somewhere else. Thanks for joining us.

Enjoy the Conference!

Co-Chairs' Welcome:

We are pleased to welcome you to the 40th Annual Conference of the Canadian Council on International Law. This year's edition promises to be an interesting one, in terms of both the variety and timeliness of the conference topics, as well as the diversity and renown of the guest speakers.

The conference looks at emerging issues in the areas of culture and innovation and their relationship with international law. The topics cover numerous aspects of international law as it relates to culture: cultural approaches to international law and international relations, the role of provinces and federated entities in international negotiations, be they commercial, cultural or environmental, dispute resolution mechanisms in the area of art and cultural property, the protection of cultural assets in times of war and in times of peace, the protection of cultural rights, cultural diversity, cultural issues in the implementation and dissemination of international humanitarian law, etc.

Innovation and new technologies are at the heart of numerous roundtables, including those on intellectual property and the Internet, privacy and data protection on the Internet, space law, etc. The Conference further takes a look at recent developments in various areas of international law—criminal, human rights, economic, commercial and environmental—with a focus on contemporary issues and international current events. Canadian and international experts will provide participants with their reflections and research results on the cutting edge of the areas concerned. Indeed, the keynote speakers are honouring us by their presence as much as by the ambitious topics they are covering and the generosity of their presentations.

We hope you will find the various conferences and activities on offer this year both stimulating and interesting. We wish to warmly thank each and every one of the speakers and presiding chairpersons for accepting our invitation; their time and intellectual vitality are the key ingredients of this Conference's success. We also wish to thank our generous sponsors, without whom we would have been unable to organize a conference of this magnitude and quality. Finally, we wish to thank those who have contributed to making the 2011 Conference of the CCIL a major event for international law in Canada once again this year: the many colleagues who have supported our efforts in recent months, the volunteers and the staff at Intertask for their crucial support in the Conference's organization and logistics.

Call for Papers: *Canadian Yearbook of International Law

The Canadian Yearbook of International Law is Canada's leading scholarly serial publication devoted to dissemination of the best Canadian and international research and writing on issues of public and private international law. The Yearbook invites submissions of articles, notes, and comments by Canadian and non-Canadian authors alike. The submission deadline for the next volume of the Yearbook (volume 49, 2011) is January 31, 2012, although earlier submissions are encouraged as the Yearbook has a rolling acceptance policy. All submissions are subject to a double-blind peer review process. Manuscripts should generally be in the range of 12,000-20,000 in the case of articles and less than 12,000 words for notes or comments (word counts inclusive of footnotes).
